TotalAV is a security service that provides antivirus and other online protection features. Your TotalAV account allows you to manage your products, subscriptions, devices, billing information, and account settings.

If you want to access your TotalAV account, you can sign in through the online account portal or directly through the TotalAV application.

Open Your TotalAV Account

Start by opening a web browser on your computer or mobile device.

Open the TotalAV account sign-in page.

Enter the email address associated with your TotalAV account.

Enter your account password.

Continue with the login process.

If your credentials are correct, you should be taken to your TotalAV account dashboard.

From the dashboard, you can manage account information, installations, downloads, billing details, and other available services.

Sign In Through the TotalAV Application

You can also sign in directly through the TotalAV application.

Open TotalAV on your device.

Look for the account or login section.

Select the login option.

Enter your TotalAV account credentials.

Continue to sign in.

Once authentication is complete, your TotalAV application can connect with your account and unlock the features associated with your subscription.

Use the Correct Email Address

Make sure you use the email address connected to your TotalAV account.

If you have multiple email addresses, use the one you provided when creating your TotalAV account or purchasing your subscription.

Using another email address may result in an account that does not display your subscription or premium features.

If your subscription is missing after signing in, checking the account email is one of the first things you should do.

Forgot Your TotalAV Password?

If you cannot remember your password, use the password reset option available on the TotalAV login screen.

Enter the email address associated with your account.

Follow the instructions provided to reset your password.

Check your email inbox for the password recovery message.

If the message does not appear, check your spam or junk folder.

After creating a new password, return to the TotalAV login page and sign in again.

Troubleshoot TotalAV Login Problems

If you cannot sign in, carefully check your email address and password.

Make sure there are no typing errors and that your password has the correct capitalization.

If your browser automatically fills in your credentials, try entering them manually.

You can also restart your browser or TotalAV application and try again.

If you are using the application, make sure it is updated to the latest available version.

Check Your Internet Connection

A stable internet connection is important when accessing your TotalAV account.

If the login page does not load correctly, check your internet connection and try again.

If you are using the TotalAV application, restarting the application can sometimes resolve temporary problems.

You can also try signing in from another browser or device to determine whether the problem is limited to your current setup.

Check Your Subscription

After signing in, review your account dashboard to make sure your TotalAV subscription is displayed correctly.

You can check your available services, account information, and other subscription details.

If your paid features are not available inside the TotalAV application, make sure you are signed in with the account that owns the subscription.

Signing out and signing back in with the correct account can help resolve account recognition problems.

Manage Your TotalAV Account

Once you have access to your account, you can manage various account features.

Depending on your subscription, you may be able to manage installations, download TotalAV software, review billing information, update account details, and manage your available services.

The features displayed in your dashboard may vary depending on your subscription and account type.

Keep Your TotalAV Account Secure

Your TotalAV account contains information about your security products and subscription, so protecting your login credentials is important.

Use a strong and unique password.

Never share your password with other people.

Do not provide verification information to strangers.

Avoid entering your credentials on unfamiliar websites.

Keep your TotalAV application and operating system updated.

Use available security features to provide additional protection for your account.

When to Contact TotalAV Support

If you cannot access your TotalAV account after checking your credentials and using the password recovery option, additional assistance may be necessary.

Keep any error message that appears during the login process.

It can also help to know whether the problem occurs on the website or inside the TotalAV application.

If your subscription is missing, mention the email address associated with the account when requesting assistance.

Never share your password with anyone claiming to provide technical support.

Final Thoughts

Accessing your TotalAV account is generally simple. Open the TotalAV account login page or the TotalAV application, enter the email address associated with your account, and provide your current password.

If you forget your password, use the available recovery process. If your subscription or premium features are missing, make sure you are signed in with the correct TotalAV account.

For other login problems, check your credentials, internet connection, browser, and application. Keeping your account information private and using a strong password can help protect your TotalAV account and the security services connected to it.
